

About Us

The Company's Directors have an extensive background in Credit Management, Debt Collection and Law.

Bruce has held top management positions for both boutique and publically listed multi-national companies. In addition to his all encompassing 15 years industry experience he is a qualified legal executive who has served on self-regulating bodies for both the collection and legal executive industries. Bruce is also a past credit management mentor for the Business in the Community programme.

David has held senior management positions in national and multinational companies. His extensive debt collection and credit management skills are borne from 20 years industry experience. The breadth of David's expertise is reflected in his election as President of the New Zealand Credit and Finance Institute and through the provision of training to outside companies.

Mike is the principal of Auckland-based law firm Citylaw. Admitted to the Bar in 1985, he commenced sole practice in 1992. With over 15 years experience acting for agencies on debt collection matters, Mike offers a unique mix of collection and litigation expertise.
